

Chris Lamb

AIA, LEED® AP / Principal

Chris has more than 20 years of architectural experience working on a variety of project types for diverse communities throughout the Pacific Northwest. He has successfully taken on many project roles from initial concept design through construction administration. Chris has a particular interest focusing on building tectonics and exterior envelope detailing, and is always searching for solutions that are effective, economical and also elegant. Recent award winning work includes the new Elm and Alder Residence Halls which were completed as part of the West Campus Housing project, a multi-block mixed-use residential community for the University of Washington campus.
